

JERUSALEM THE GOLDEN.

Dr. Adler Tells of a Visit to the Famous City.

Many Points Touched Upon, Although the Dirt Left Out—Landing at Jaffa—Uncivil Hebron.

Dr. Cyrus Adler of the National Museum gave an interesting talk on Jerusalem last night at the Eighth Street Synagogue, before the Young Men's Hebrew Association and its friends. The house was well filled. Dr. Adler told the story, in brief, of a trip that he recently made to the Holy Land, in an interesting manner. He described the scenes of the trip by canal to Port Said, where, he said, there are about fifty Jewish families that have got far enough to need a poor house. Then he told of the dangerous harbor of Jaffa, where all passengers are compelled to land by means of small boats that pass between rocks so close together that there is not room for the oars. Through the motley crowd of men of all nations and animals of all sizes, he took his friends to the combination hotel, stable, and American consulate, where he hired for $20 in American mintage a rig to take his party to "Jerusalem the Golden." It is a ride of forty miles along a tortuous road, and occupies about nine hours. There is a railroad, but it is not interesting, and jars on the senses as being too modern. A German inn on the roadside furnishes good beer to those who have not carried their own wine.

Pilgrims are to be seen here and there, for it is just before the great feast of the Passover, and here the tourists encounter a Yencenic, from southern Arabia, who has tramped all the way from home along a road that it takes a caravan thirty days to traverse. He carries a prayerbook printed in Italy, and is intent upon reaching the Holy City. Close to Jerusalem are signs of modern progress, notably the extension of the city into the desert, where splendid houses are being built by the wealthy classes. There is a decided boom in real estate along the Jaffa road just at present, and prices are on the rise. Living at the wayside hotel is cheap, and the accommodation is good. The hotel is run by a

BENSON'S POROUS PLASTER
For "Superior quality of Medicinal Plaster" This makes 43
Highest award to
SEABURY & JOHNSON, CHEMISTS, NEW YORK.
GET THE GENUINE

For NO OTHER one DOES, EVER DID, or EVER WILL sell such sterling qualities at such low prices as we quote.

Saks &amp; Company.

Look Out For "Skin Deep Beauty."

Most men are taken with the looks of an Overcoat. Everybody who sells—knows it—and lots of 'em pay more attention to the "glidings" than the worth (for that sort).

We're all for quality (because it lasts)—it carries "looks" along with it. And while it's wearing and wearing—holding its shape and keeping "new"—you feel that you're getting your money's worth. (Peculiarity of our Cut).

All styles (in all) and our $10 to $55 askings are mighty little. (For the good in 'em).

Wonder if your coachman needs anything? Just to show you a pair of Shoes—just to show you what money can do. Money back whenever you're not satisfied.

Saks and Company
Only Complete Outfitters in Town.
PA. AVE. AND 7TH ST.

$18.50 Buys a 14k. Gold Watch.

IF YOU WANT TO MAKE A LADY a Christmas present you could not get as much for your money if you were to try all over the city than a handsome Gold Watch. It is a beautiful watch, in either English or Waltham movement. Our special price, $18.50. If you build a watch, we will lay you one aside until the holidays. Open evenings only, 5 to 7 p.m.

M. Hoffa, 717 Market Space.

Housekeepers

Many times want some article for the kitchen or dining room, but do not know where to go. They want it at a low price, without taking the time and trouble to go to a store. We have a large stock of household goods, and we will lay you one aside until the holidays. Open evenings only, 5 to 7 p.m.

M. W. Beveridge, CHINA, HOUSEFURNISHINGS, &c., 1215 F and 1214 G sts.

Thanksgiving & Sharpless' Butter.

IF YOU WANT TO ENJOY YOUR Thanksgiving dinner with SHARPLESS' CELEBRATED BUTTER, get it for its richness and delicious flavor. 5 LBS. BOXES CELEBRATED BUTTER, $1.00. (Orders by mail and telephone filled promptly.)

Geo. M. Oyster, Jr., 11 1/2 W. 1st St., Telephone Market, 26 RIGGS MARKET, Corner, 1209.

Jolly good fellow who, with his sons, form a sort of syndicate in the control of all the hotels of the city round about. His daughters are the waitresses, and speak several languages.

Inside Jerusalem.

Down to the city and through the wall go the tourists, through that wonderful wall that now stands a monument to the greatness of the trip by canal to Port Said, where there are no sidewalks, and where animals jostle each other and where carriages cannot go on account of the steps in the streets leading down into the center of town from the walls. Here go a half dozen Syrian women, strong, steady looking and handsome, with their peculiar head-dresses, carrying on their heads a Jewish woman, without veils, daughters of a fair race, and in themselves beautiful as the flowers of the field. They are the tourists come at last to that part of the wall that is known to be the only portion of the original structure in existence, where there are several hundred Jews sitting their prayers. On every side is shown the most intense religious feeling. Many are weeping in silent tears, and the crowd of Zion. One young man is bewailing the fall of the "chosen people" in loud tones between his prayers.

Allah is Allah.

Then comes a quick trip through the synagogues. In one of them is noticed a pretty custom, of women, of all sizes, to leave a small bunch of flowers, and to leave at home. Then into one of the many private synagogues fitted up by the wealthy residents of Jerusalem, where services—short services of about two hours—are held in the early morning, as an appetizer. Up they climb to the top of the tower of David, which stands in the wall, where a Turkish company is guarding the tower. The tourist looks over the plain at the mountain of Moab through his field glasses, and exclaims the wonder of one of the guards, who asks to see. As he gazes his face assumes an expression of fear, and he turns his eyes away with "The mountains are coming this way. They will fall upon me!" The kindly tourist explains the workings of the glasses, and with a reverent glance toward the glorious blue of the zenith, the Turk exclaims: "Allah is great."

Uncivil Hebron.

Down, down, go the visitors, into the famous quarries, on and on through their thousand feet of length, into the far-away inner chambers where, it is thought, the bodies of the prophets were taken out into the light of day. Then quickly they journey over to the tomb of Rachel, and on to the uncivil town of Hebron, where the children fling stones and call names at all strangers, for it is a belief that all but Hebronites are possessed of the "evil eye." After taking a tour of the city on a round of sight-seeing, Dr. Adler explained some of the modern customs of Jerusalem, especially with regard to the distribution of the money they receive from the sale of all lands for charitable purposes. He told how the inhabitants of the city have agreed to give up the native Hebrew tongue as their common language, and how it is being taught to the young, and is growing into a modern language once more. In conclusion, he said that the journey to Jerusalem, which is but seventeen days from New York, and not at all expensive.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Foot Ball Games Arranged and Other Gossip of Interest.

The executive committee of the class of '93 will hold a meeting this evening at the residence of Miss Mabel Swingle on Capitol Hill. Mr. Davis evidently thinks, as Dr. Lane does, that the young ladies should be given a chance in the editorial line, and accordingly has appointed Miss Cruikshank as editor-in-chief of the Balance Sheet, to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Mr. Poston. Miss Cruikshank's promotion will cause the appointment of another assistant editor.

Mr. E. O. Reil will give the pupils of the Night High School an interesting talk this evening on the eye.

Managers Prince and Claxton and Capt. Mills and Lewis of the Central and Business foot ball teams, respectively, held a consultation Friday and decided that no players that do not attend those schools shall be allowed to participate in Wednesday's game. This will prevent Donald McDonald, who attends the Night High School, from playing with the Business team. Carr, who plays left end with Business, also attends the Night High School, but as he has been playing all the year, it is thought the Central will raise no objections on his account.

It has been decided that the Easterns and Central shall meet on Saturday, December 2, at Y. M. C. A. Park, the game to be called at 3:30 o'clock. The Easterns have made a number of changes on their team, and it is thought, with respect to the Central, that it will be a very close game. The Easterns have received from the injuries he received in a practice game several weeks ago and will be better made his appearance in the regular practice game. It is thought that McKinley, who resigned from the team last week, will play in the game next Saturday.

Maj. Ross has ordered that all fancy drill squads be done away with, this being done by the general order of the day, in which these squads have been organized. The squad at the Business immediately disbanded when the order was published at the Central. But those at the Easterns and Western have as yet failed to comply with the order. These squad drills always form an interesting part of the various school entertainments, and it is thought the Central will be the last to see them.

At a special meeting of the Pedestrian Club Friday Mr. Claxton was elected a member.

Mr. Claxton has resigned from the Dramatic Club at the Business. This will necessitate the selection of another young gentleman to take his part in "American Hearts."

FOR IDENTIFICATION.

A Suspicious Character Arrested, Photographed and Sent Away.

In a small room in the large brick building corner of 9th and E streets northwest until Friday night there lived a man known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of his guests and companions are persons who are also known as "hitters of the pipe." Policeman Horne, who has been doing some good work since the appearance of "Jack the Slasher," was acquainted with the opium fiend, and when he was detailed to work with the detective a few days ago he paid a visit to the room. He was met by a man who was known as "Gypsy Joe," a slave to the opium habit, and naturally most of